New Titles from Allen & Unwin

Leisure Identities and Interactions

John R. Kelly

This first volume in the Leisure and Recreation Studies series examines leisure as an expression or negotiation of self-definition. Professor Kelly integrates theory and research into a coherent and controversial argument that is likely to become a springboard for debate among sociologists of leisure for many years to come.

Youth and Leisure

Kenneth Roberts

In this third book of the series, Kenneth Roberts examines the way young people are responding to the latest trend towards unemployment and its associated problems. His book combines theories of adolescence, theories of the role and growth of leisure, and the sources and consequences of post-war youth culture.

The Limits of Rationality

An Essay on the Social and Moral Thought of Max Weber

Rogers Brubaker

Weber's ideas about rationality are central to his sociological work and to his moral perspective, yet they are neither easily accessible nor easily understandable. Brubaker reconstructs his rich but fragmented discussion of rationalism and rationalization and thereby illuminates his empirical and moral diagnosis of modernity.

Artificial Reproduction

A Social Investigation

R. Snowden, G.D. Mitchell and E.M. Snowden

Based on the results of a research project funded by the Social Science Research Council in which the authors examined the experience of 899 couples who underwent AID (Artificial Insemination by Donor) between 1940 and 1980. The book makes an important contribution to the discussion of a matter of topical interest and concern.
